

Housing Choice

Housing Types

Single-Family Detached

Single unit, not attached to any other unit.

Duplex / Side-by-Side (Single-Family Semi-Detached)

Single unit, attached on one side to another unit.

Duplex / Over-Under (Single-Family Semi-Detached)

Single unit above another unit (technically a two-unit).

Mobile / Manufactured Home

Homes built in a factory under a federal building code administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD).

Accessory Dwelling Unit (ADU) Stand-Alone Unit

A secondary unit on a lot with a primary residential dwelling (could be any structural type). ADUs could also be attached to the primary unit, interior upper level, interior lower level, garage conversion, or above a garage.

Townhouse (Single-Family Attached)

Single unit, attached on two sides to two other units (or one unit, in the case of end units).

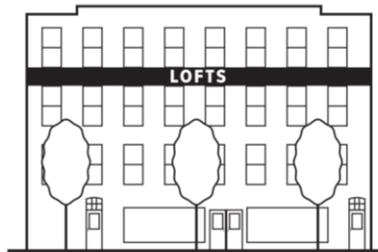

Multi-Family

Includes both rental multi-family and owner-occupied units in a multi-family structure (condos).

Multi-Use

A new development containing both residential and commercial or other uses.

Building Conversion / Redevelopment

Existing building(s) converted to multi-use, including residential and commercial or other use.

Senior Living

Retirement community or CCRC (Continuing Care Retirement Community) – a place where residence and care are offered for the elderly, not just an over-55 community.

Age Restricted

Over-55/active adult/age-restricted developments that are not CCRCs and do not offer any type of assisted living or nursing care.

All of These Are Myths!

Multi-family units and affordable housing:

- Have more cars and create more traffic
- Have more school-age children and lead to overcrowding in schools
- Lead to an increase in crime
- Depress the value of neighboring real estate

The residents in these units:

- Do not work
- Do not pay taxes

The Facts

Multi-family units and affordable housing:

- Tend to have fewer cars and generate fewer vehicle trips
- Tend to have fewer occupants and school-age kids
- Become catalysts for additional neighborhood investments
- Do not have a higher impact on crime than market rate developments of comparable densities

- The residents in these units are typically employed and many are essential workers
- Owners pay the same property taxes as other housing types

To Simplify Zoning, Provide More Housing Choice!

- Minimize discretionary review processes by permitting residential land uses by right
- Amend regulations that discourage a range of housing types. Such regulations include:
 - Off-street parking minimums, maximum building heights, minimum lot sizes, setback requirements, and impact fees
- Incentivize land assembly for infill and redevelopment

Questions for Discussion

- What do you notice? What stands out?
- How might you use this analysis to inform local and regional decision making?
- What can you do to follow up with this analysis?
- Has there been any regional interest in increasing the variety of housing options?
- Do you see any infill and reinvestment opportunities to locate new housing?
